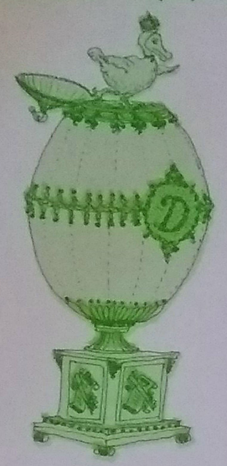
ещё dodubious информация!



Lord Dodo's great-great uncle Vladimr Dodov owned vast forested estates north of St Petersburg, wood from which fed the papermills of His Lordship's publishing empire in pre-revolutionary times. In fact, Prince Dodov was himself a paper baron, publishing the avidly-read Ododessa edition of the Gubernski Vedomost. To celebrate his first million roubles' profit, the Prince commissioned M. Fabergé to fashion the stupendous creation drawn here. Sadly only this preparatory sketch survives – the beautiful egg was flattened to a pancake by the Bolsheviks, who knew no batter.
