Dear Karen, further to your email we can confirm the following.

The salvaged material we will place on pallets in an orderly manner and covered in a tarpaulin to best preserve their condition. Pallets will be placed side by side (not stacked) within an area defined by herring fence and secured with a padlock in the south / east corner of the site (former car park). As a result this area will be away from the main construction site during the building works.

We trust the above clarifies this point however please let me know if you have any other queries.

Regards,

Dan Stack

Subject: [OFFICIAL (SENSITIVE)] 21/00023/DISCON: Discharge of condition 3 of Planning Permission 20/00426/FUL

Dear Mr Stack

I refer to the above application for discharge of condition 3.

Details of the storage of the salvaged stonework is not specified in the application and this is a requirement of the condition. Storing the materials securely on site is acceptable in principle. However, to ensure the stonework is safely stored in readiness for its re-use in the new building, it is recommended that any salvaged architectural stonework is carefully placed on palettes in a secure area and not stacked or 'piled up' to avoid damage to any retrieved materials.

Please supply further details for the careful storage of the salvaged stonework to allow me to progress the application.

Kind Regards

Karen Wake
