Comment:Oxford has already lost several music venues over the last few years and with the effect that covid has had recently on the local music scene losing a venue of such pedigree and history like the wheatsheaf is tragic. And the fact that it is being replaced by student accommodation which the city and surrounding area have so much of already especially when compared to the low number of venues in the city centre.... I'm upset not only as a promoter for local music and supporter of the bands but someone who wants local music to carry on and this feels like the one of the last few nails in the coffin of Oxford music
