Cox Hill Cottage
Cox Hill
Boxford
CO10 5HR

Cox hill cottage is situated within the conservation area of Boxford. It is sited in the centre of a group of 3 detached cottages built around the same time. Estimated to be late C 19th Century. Each of the 3 cottages have had previous alterations which has resulted in the front facades all being different. Cox Hill Cottage is constructed with face brick (which has been painted) under an old clay pan tile roof.

The properties surrounding these 3 cottages are all modern development, along Brook Hall Road, which is opposite and various designs either side.

The homeowner would like to replace the windows within the cottage. The existing windows are timber with a double glazed units. These windows are not original to the house and look to be 1980's replacements. Although these windows have double glazed units the cavity is very small and offer little thermal benefit. The frames themselves are drafty and do not provide the modern security that the homeowner requires.

Consideration has been made to the current window design and that of the cottages either side. As all 3 are different, both in colour and design, the homeowner would like to make a small adjustment to the design (removing the small fanlight) and changing the colour.

The proposed windows are 'Smart Systems' Aluminium heritage windows, manufactured by Hadleigh Glass Ltd. The external colour required is 'Painswick Grey' which is RAL 7038

Ral 7038 Painswick
