Matthew Easton commented Thanks for drawings. They look like they would be sufficient for a planning application. A location plan (showing the whereabouts of the site), site plan (showing the arrangement of the new elements within the site) and roof plan for the storage building would also be required. The elevations should show the external finishing materials as well. I can confirm that the fee would be £202 and an application can be made online at https://www.eplanning.scot/.
