We are replacing the old, communal gas heating systems with individual Air Source Heat Pumps. This will mean that, at each property, an individual air source heat pump will be placed on the external elevation. The residents will have individual control of the ASHP's (something they do not have at present with the existing system) which will mean a better temperature internally and also a vast reduction in CO2 emissions that will tie in with the aspects of the 'Climate Emergency' that has recently been called by Manchester City Council. The individual control of heating systems will provide individual residents with ownership of their heating systems meaning that they will become aware of the amount of heat they are using. The current systems of communal boilers with no thermostatic control leads to several issues. It goes against the logic with the Heat Metering and Billing Regulations 2017 which places an onus on landlords to provide individual controls to each resident - the new system will have TRV's and thermostat included as part of the highly efficient ASHP installation. Currently MCC pay the gas bill for the whole property and recoup monies (via a service charge) from each resident. The residents generally control heat in a highly inefficient way - by opening windows and closing them as they have no overall control of the system. This means that the residents exceed general use and not all gas consumption costs are regained from the residents. As well as
