VELUX Guides & Articles

What VELUX flashing do I need?
The VELUX flashing that you need depends on the material of the roof and the types of finishing touches you might want. For example, choosing the correct flashing for your roof material is essential but you can choose freely whether you'd like recessed or standard roof windows. Other options include adding additional energy efficiency and

How to remove a VELUX blind
VELUX blinds are the perfect way to add privacy and prevent excess light from entering a room and are available in a number of different styles, colours and operations. Whether you're looking for a VELUX blackout blind, which completely blocks out any daylight from entering a room, a VELUX roller blind, which reduces the glare

Roof slate prices
Roof slate prices vary greatly depending on what material of roof slate you choose. ### Questions & Answers

Question: Once the window is in place on the roof, does the pivot system also allow complete removal of the window to allow emergency exit?
Answer: This would not be suitable for emergency exit, you would need a top hung window if needed as means of escape.

Question: Hi, Will the sash of this window fit into the frame of my old GGL-6 please? I don't have any problem with the frame, it's just the sash which has rotted and is leaking. Thanks. (this is what's on the label: GGL-6 1018-F08-0)
Answer: Unfortunately it will not fit an old style Velux, if the sash has gone on an old model the only option is to upgrade the whole window to a newer model I am afraid.

Question: Does it come with tile flashing
Answer: This does not come with a tile Flashing, for plain/peg tiles you would need code EDP CK04 0000 or for a profile or interlocking tile you would need code EDW CK04 0000.

Question: What is height for this window 55cm or 98cm
Answer: Windows are width then height. So the height for this window would be 98cm.
