

To whom it may concern,

My little boy Rory has been attending Jades Childminding service for the past 2 and a half years.

I'm a nurse working for the NHS and I work long and awkward hours, without Jades childminding service I wouldn't be able to go to work as no one can provide the hours I need for Rory. Jade is my local childminder which is really important to me as I don't drive. This allows me to walk to Jades when dropping off and picking up and there's no stress about public transport. As well as being local, I know Rory is very happy and settled in Jades care because they are so good at what they do. That alone is such a big relief to a working Mum. Knowing your child is safe and happy makes going to work so much easier and you can focus on your job, and as a nurse that's exactly what I need.

Rory absolutely loves going to Jades and enjoys learning and socialising with his friends. Jade and Kathleen are incredible with him and all the other kids that attend. When Rory is at Jades he is safe, healthy, he's achieving, he's nurtured, is active, responsible, respected and included. These are the well-being indicators used within the GIRFEC framework also know as SHANARRI. This ensures all children grow up feeling loved, safe and respected and get the best start to life. Since joining Jades Childminding Service Rorys development has been continuous and his well-being needs are always met.

Jade always goes above and beyond for the kids that attend, I'm incredibly grateful for her service and wouldn't be able to continue as a nurse without her.

Kind Regards,

Julie Cunningham
