To Whom it may concern,

Hever Stud was formed in 1983 and has bred many noteworthy thoroughbred racehorses. They purchased and stood the champion first season stallion Elfisio, who sired many notable winners including Hever Golf Rose.

The stud reports stock losses due to infectious disease outbreaks associated with movement of horses on and off the yard. In the interest of biosecurity, the stud should have a isolation units that are separate from its breeding and young stock areas. Separate isolation units are needed to deal with the risk of introducing disease into the herd by horses moving on and off the premises, and also to house any infectious horses away from other horses on the farm.

We are in support of the planning application in the interest of biosecurity on the farm.

Yours faithfully

Karin Kruger
