Installation of a hybrid heating system combining the existing oil burning boiler with two air source heat pumps ("ASHPs"). Two ASHPs to be located on the far side of the garden store outbuilding, out of site from the main house. The ASHP exchange and water buffer will be housed in the garden store outbuilding, next to the existing oil fuel tanks. A hot water feed and return pipe will be installed under the court yard to connect the plant room to the existing boiler and internal hot water pipes in the boot room of the main house. These 2 pipes will follow the route of the existing oil fuel tank feed to the oil boiler and will not be visible above ground or outside of the property. The installation of the ASHP will substantially reduce the amount of oil burned to heat the house and substantially decrease the carbon footprint of the house and future proof the property in line with governmental initiative to get households to transition from carbon fuels to renewable alternative energy sources.
