Subject: Support for a new Aldi in Skelmersdale

To whom it may concern,

I used to be a regular shopper at Aldi, and have always loved their products and prices. But since moving to Skelmersdale I have found myself having to shop elsewhere, at a greater cost. The store's current location makes it hard to manage a shop. People take Aldi's trolleys to do their shopping all over the concourse, which means before you can even start you've got to go and search for one. Which isn't much fun if you have children with you or are on a time limit. The car parking situation is not good either, with no designated parking zones for Aldi customers, it is really hard work to be pushing a trolley full of shopping all the way over the other side of the car parks, and can often be dangerous when you're trying to control small children as well. A new Aldi store with their own parking would be really beneficial to everybody in the community, and potentially save people a lot of money, as the same shop elsewhere is almost double the cost.

Yours,
