During the current storms we have had a large (>10M) fir tree come down in part of our garden which is in a conservation zone. It has snapped off at the base and is now lying on our garage. I am currently trying to arrange some one to cut it up and remove it. I just wanted to check whether this requires planning permission since it was in a conservation zone or whether there was any requirement to replant another tree etc. I have attached a photo to confirm the incident.

I would be grateful if you could advise accordingly. Our postal address (should you need it) is DN14 8QW (no 44-46).

Yours sincerely,

Tim Wilson
