Brown

If you are looking for a roof finish that is more matured than some of the red-based colours but not too dark, then the Brown is the tile for you.

We at Lifestiles are so driven for you to have the exact roof for your dream home or produce the best match for an existing building. The second showcase here shows a bespoke mix of restoration and handmade brown. (The mix is 70% Restoration and 30% brown labelled as Rotherfield). So if you love the restoration handmade tile but want to add another colour in please pick up the phone or email one of my team. Any bespoke mix such as this at Rotherfield is mixed at the factory to the exact instructions you require.

The Lifestiles handmade clay roof tile is one of the few genuinely handmade clay roof tiles available on the market today. The Lifestiles handmade tile is also known as The Ashbury®, in some areas of the country. The beautiful clay tile offers individuality in appearance and a blend that recreates the look of yesteryear. Its timeless nature and lasting quality means the Lifestiles handmade clay roof tiles are an ideal solution for new build, renovation or restoration projects and our variety of carefully selected blends makes it the perfect choice.

Their manufacture is traditional with each tile being produced by hand. The handmade tile cannot be produced by machinery – the distinctive shades and slight variations of size, camber and texture give the unique appearance so sought after in these days of mass production.

All the handmade roof tiles (<https://www.lifestiles.co.uk/products/handmade-clay-tiles/>) are produced in a custom built production facility in Poland, which combines traditional manufacturing skills and firing techniques essential to keep the character of a handmade clay tile, with modern drying facilities and temperature control systems vital to maintain the quality necessary for the UK climate. The tiles are tested in our on-site laboratory throughout their production ensuring they meet the rigorous standards required to meet the relevant British and new European standards. The whole procedure is under the EU guidelines and the product is CE marked and has Declaration of performance certification (a requirement of all the leading roofing and building merchants), and factory guarantee for 30 years. All of this information and associated certification is available in the technical area of this website.
