Species - Quercus robur

Dimensions - Approximately 12 metres tall x 7 metres across

Following my visit to 30 Hunters Forstal Road to inspect an oak tree in the front garden area of the property that has had previous work carried out, it is clear the tree is in decline compared to the other oak trees in the area. There was very little foliage and large areas of dead wood in the crown. In my professional opinion the tree has previously been pruned at the wrong time of the year causing the decline within the tree which the tree cannot recover from. My client wishes to plant a replacement tree with a younger oak specimen. The tree has recently lost a large dead limb over the public pathway and there is a high risk of further limbs failing.

Recommendation -

To sectionally fell to ground level before the tree fails and causes potential harm and damage to passers by.
