

place a ridge tile so that it sits on top of its two neighbouring tiles. However, because this approach makes the access point most noticeable, it is often undesirable to developers.

