General purpose agricultural building at Upper Eastbach, English Bicknor, GL16 7ET.

The building to be demolished is estimated to be 15 - 20 years old. The shed is constructed with a patchwork of single skin corrugated tin and profiled steel cladding supported with a mixture of treated softwood timbers and older creosoted timbers. The roof is a very shallow (approximate 12 degree) double pitch with no roof void, the roof is covered with single skin corrugated tin and lined in places with modern treated OSB sheets. The building is used to store agricultural items such as a small tractor and oil / diesel drums.
