Description of Proposed Works

Please describe the proposed works

We had some garden work done last year, where we removed a large raised terrace made of decking. The decking projected approximately 5m into our garden on two different levels, the first was 3.5m with a lower section of 1m. The deck was approximately 2m from ground level (Garden).

We replaced our existing fences as the original ones were very scruffy and made up of old panels. We replaced them with fencing which finishes at the same height as the ones we removed. This was done at the extended height to cover the back of the neighbour's fences which are a different style. All the gardens in our road are at different heights so discrepancies in heights are very common. Our new fences are not visible to the neighbours bar the exception set out in the next paragraph.

On the right side of the garden looking back towards the house we extended the fencing beyond the level of the neighbour's fence. This was supposed to provide some privacy for us both, however, I accept that if this is above the neighbour's fence, it should be reduced to the level of their existing fence line, so it is not visible from their side.

We were unaware of the 2m rule and replaced like-for-like bar the section explained above.
