2.1 Summary of results

Having arrived at the property and observed the condition of the tree we can confirm that it is infected with ash dieback, which is the cause of the increased loss of smaller branches, the disease is in its early stages, removal will be needed at some stage, given the location of the tree and its lean over the adjacent neighbours gardens the homeowner would like to remove the tree now before its risk increases.
