Design and Access statement

88 Station Road

Number 88 is a 19th century thatched cottage in a row of four forming a group on Station Road north of the guided busway. The cottages were originally built for the workers at the achievers works in Histon. Station Road is a long road with varied properties, mostly residential. At this particular part however, the thatched properties are entirely surrounded by modern office blocks with office car parks to the rear. The cottages are set back from the road with traditional front gardens.
