The 1989 planning permission for the single storey rear extension has been archived, and whilst we can access the file, we are unable to determine the depth as it is not annotated on the plans and the archiving method used in the 1990s means I can't measure it. The permitted development (PD) rights are intact for your property. As such, you can build a single storey rear extension up to 4m deep without the need for planning permission. I note that your intended extension would attach to the side of the existing rear extension. Now, as this extension is not original to the house when built, it does not constitute 'original' side wall in this regard. What this means is that, if that extension is less than 4m deep then it can be widened without planning permission so long as it is not deepened. If the proposed extension would be any deeper than 4m from the rear elevation of the original dwelling then you will need planning permission. Authority Employee/Member With respect to the Authority, is the applicant and/or agent one of the following: (a) a member of staff (b) an elected member (c) related to a member of staff (d) related to an elected member It is an important principle of decision-making that the process is open and transparent. For the purposes of this question, "related to" means related, by birth or otherwise, closely enough that a fair-minded and informed observer, having considered the facts, would conclude that there was bias on the part of the decision-maker in the Local Planning Authority. Do any of the above statements apply? O Yes ⊗ No Interest in the Land Please state the applicant's interest in the land Owner ○ Lessee Occupier | Other Declaration I/We hereby apply for Lawful development: Proposed use as described in the questions answered, details provided, and the accompanying plans/drawings and additional information.
