Description of Proposed Works

Please describe the proposed works

Replacement of timber sash windows and wooden front door with uPVC and retain the character of the house as it was previously. The house was having timber sash windows and main front door that were draughty and cause the property to achieve a low energy efficiency rating. Replacing these with uPVC double-glazed windows is necessary to keep the house warm and we tried to retain the character and keeping the windows and front door style in harmony with the previous design as well as with the neighbours' in the same street.

Householder developments are currently exempt from biodiversity net gain requirements.

Paragraph 13 of Schedule 7A of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (as amended) sets out that every planning permission granted for the development of land in England shall be deemed to have been granted subject to the 'general biodiversity gain condition'.

However, the 'general biodiversity gain condition' does not apply in relation to planning permission for a development which is the subject of a householder application, within the meaning of Article 2(1) of the Town and Country Planning (Development Management Procedure) (England) Order 2015 (as amended).
