1) View of the shed seen from the driveway in front of Dunbeg House.

2) View of shed showing proximity to the front west gate and foliage largely hiding the shed from view to passing vehicles.

3) Close-up of the shed seen from the driveway in front of the entrance gate.

4) View of the shed looking over the wall by the B863 road, with Dunbeg House in the background.

5) View of the shed in November from standing height on the B863. In summer this view would be largely obscured by leaves.

6) View of shed in the context of Dunbeg House.

7) View of the rear of the shed, showing how it is constructed on concrete pillars at the back, as the ground falls away from the driveway.

8) Close up of one of the concrete pillars showing the space underneath the shed.

9) View of the shed looking across the stream from Bishop's Bay Cottage grounds, showing the shed with the relative positions of Dunbeg House and the Games Room furthest away.

10) View of the shed from the woodland at the back, looking up towards the wall by the road.

11) View of the Games Room, the other outbuilding to Dunbeg House, showing the natural slate roof which is the same as that proposed for the shed.

12) View from the shed across the drive to Dunbeg House and the Games Room.

13) View of Dunbeg House from the shed – the height of the roof means the detail of the roof tiles is not visible from below, other than that they are made of black slate.

14) Dunbeg House Roof close up, in Ballachulish slate.

15) View of Bishop's Bay Cottage Roof in natural stone slate, as is being proposed for the shed.

16) View of the Alltshellach Hotel building nearest to Bishop's Bay cottage, showing a natural stone slate roof, also used on all of the other hotel buildings.
